

New Course
Spring 2016!

CI507 BOD: Learning and the Body

Instructor: Robb Lindgren

Education Bldg Room 17

Wednesdays 4-6:50

CRN # 31988

Credit: 4 Hours

In this graduate seminar we will explore how body movement and physical engagement with the environment is connected to how people learn. We will explore embodied cognition and related ideas from philosophy and psychology and apply them to educational contexts. The course will examine the ways that body activity has been employed in curricula and other learning interventions, and students will be exposed to new technologies that can respond to gestures and other embodied actions. Students will design their own embodied learning activities around a topic of their choosing.

Any Questions?
Contact the Instructor at robblind@illinois.edu