

Founded in 1946, the School of Labor and Employment Relations at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign has over 20 faculty with expertise that span virtually every aspect of the employment relationship. Our degree programs provide students with the breadth of knowledge necessary to become effective practitioners in corporate settings or in labor union leadership, as well as the flexibility for students to build a depth of knowledge in critical aspects of employment.

In 2011-2012, LER students came from 92 undergraduate institutions (47 domestic, 45 international), 71 majors, 18 states, and 11 countries. The class was 72% Female, 25% minority (including Asian), and 31% International.

For full-time entry-level hires, the average private sector salary was $70,577. Signing bonuses averaged $7,413 ranging between $2,000 - $15,000. Interns received an average salary of $4,686 per month (private sector), with a range of $2,080-$6,500 per month.
